NORTH COUNTY

BOUDINOT-SOUTHARD-ROSS ESTATE

135 North Maple Avenue
Basking Ridge, NJ 07920

Known locally as “The Ross Farm,” this fifty-acre site is on the State and National Registers of Historic Places because of the influential people who lived there. Elias Boudinot (President of the Continental Congress from 1782 to 1783) and Samuel Southard, (New Jersey Senator, Governor, and Secretary of War and Secretary of the Treasury for Presidents James Monroe and John Quincy Adams), are primary examples. Members of the Ross family were the most recent residents.

The Friends of the Boudinot-Southard-Ross Estate is a community-based volunteer organization that produces cultural, historical, and educational events throughout the year. In addition, the group maintains Boudinot’s Giving Garden which has donated more than 2,500 pounds of fresh produce to local food banks over the past several years.

Website: www.rossfarm.org

Email: info@rossfarm.org

Organization: The site is managed by the Friends of the Boudinot-Southard-Ross Estate, is owned by Somerset County and maintained by the Somerset County Park Commission.

THE BRICK ACADEMY

15 W. Oak Street
Basking Ridge, NJ 07920

In 1764, the Rev. Dr. Samuel Kennedy, pastor of the Basking Ridge Presbyterian Church, founded a classical school at his farmstead in Basking Ridge. The school prepared young men for college, with many going on to the College of New Jersey (later Princeton University). In 1809, the Rev. Dr. Robert Finley, Kennedy's successor, built the Federal-style Brick Academy in the center of the village. Theodore Frelinghuysen, William L. Dayton and Samuel Southard were some of its prestigious alumni. Today, the Brick Academy serves as the headquarters of The Historical Society of the Somerset Hills.

Year-round Features and Activities:

- 1895 period schoolroom with pot belly stove, desks and all!
- Permanent exhibit: "What Put Somerset Hills on the Map," featuring people, places and events from the Somerset Hills towns of Bedminster, Bernardsville, Bernards Township (Basking Ridge), Far Hills, and Peapack-Gladstone

DR JOHN VERMEULE HOUSE

223 Rock Avenue
Green Brook, NJ 08812

Construction on this Georgian Colonial-style farmhouse began in 1799 by Dr. John Vermeule, the first physician in the rural area of what would become Green Brook. It is situated on a 2.2 acre tract, and it is all that remains of the original 116-acre plantation purchased by Cornelius Vermeule for his eldest son Adrian, a local militia man and dispatch rider during the Revolutionary War. Adrian was wounded and captured by the British and imprisoned in the famous Sugar House in New York City where he died. Dr. John Vermeule, Adrian's son, inherited the land and built the farmstead. He practiced medicine and operated a farm on the property until his death in 1813. After his son sold the property in 1824, numerous owners have occupied the house, including a Jewish dairy farmer, Quakers and the Mundy family. They operated the Grotto Farm Dairy into the mid-1960's and sold the house and property to Green Brook Township in 2008. The house was relatively untouched over its 200-year history and offers a rare glimpse into early-mid 19th century architecture.

JACOBUS VANDERVEER HOUSE

3055 River Road
Bedminster, NJ 07921
(located in River Road Park)

The Jacobus Vanderveer House is the last surviving building associated with the Pluckemin Encampment of 1778-1779 and the Vanderveers, a family prominent in Bedminster history. General Henry Knox and his family lived in the house while he oversaw the Artillery School, considered to be the first installation in America to train officers in engineering and artillery. The house is owned by Bedminster Township.

Year Round Features and Activities:

- The interior contains massive exposed beams as well as Federal and Greek Revival woodwork and wide plank flooring
- Original Barrel-Back cabinetry, fireplaces and exterior

KENNEDY-MARTIN-STELLE FARMSTEAD
450 King George Road
Basking Ridge, NJ 07920

The Kennedy-Martin-Stelle Farmstead dates back to the Revolutionary War. The four-acre site includes a farmhouse, wagon house, cow shed and English barn which are significant as early examples of English and modified Dutch framing techniques. The site is also important for its associations with the Reverend Samuel Kennedy, a distinguished local minister and educator, Colonel Ephraim Martin, a Revolutionary War hero and New Jersey Legislator, the politically prominent Stelle family, and Gerald Pearson, the Bell Labs physicist who created the first successful solar cell. The house is owned by Bernards Township.

Year Round Features and Activities:

KIRCH-FORD-TERRILL HOUSE

1 Reinman Road
Warren, NJ 07059

The original section of the Kirch-Ford-Terrill House predates the American Revolution. It's among the earliest buildings in the township and is a fine example of an 18th century vernacular dwelling. The western portion of the house, also of 18th century vintage, may have been moved to the site. Captain William Ford owned the house during the Revolution. In the 1830s it was owned by Thomas Terrill who was the first clerk of Warren Township, a school board member, and a magistrate and judge for Somerset County. The house is owned by Warren Township and maintained by the Warren Township Historic Sites Committee.

Year Round Features and Activities:

- Visitors are welcomed for tours during General Public Hours

MOUNT BETHEL BAPTIST MEETING HOUSE

Mountainview and
Mt. Bethel Roads
Warren, NJ 07059

The Mount Bethel Meeting House was built in 1786. Some of the materials used in its construction were salvaged from an earlier structure that was the home of the county's first Baptist congregation. The building was used for religious purposes until the congregation moved to its new church in 1960. It is one of the few 18th century timber-frame meeting houses in New Jersey that retains much of its original character. The post and beam frame structure has gunstock posts at the front and rear walls. Handcrafted pews and wall panels show evidence of hand planed surfaces. The house is owned by Warren Township and maintained by the Warren Township Historic Sites Committee.

Year Round Features and Activities:

USGA GOLF MUSEUM

77 Liberty Corner Road
Liberty Corner, NJ 07938

The USGA Golf Museum and Library is the nation's oldest sports museum and the world's leading institution for the collection, preservation, interpretation, and dissemination of golf history. Our collections, the world's largest and most significant related to the game of golf, serve as the foundation of our diverse roles, services, and initiatives. The greatest champions and moments in American golf history come alive through engaging exhibitions. Designed by John Russell Pope, a prominent architect of the early 20th century, this Georgian Revival mansion was constructed in 1919 for Thomas Frothingham. Pope also designed the Jefferson Memorial, and National Gallery of Art in Washington, DC, and the Lord Memorial Fountain on the Courthouse Green in Somerville, New Jersey.

Year Round Features and Activities:

- Hall of Champions with 16 official USGA championship trophies and the name of every USGA champion in history
- Five additional dedicated rooms and multimedia exhibits on Ben Hogan, Bob Jones, Mickey Wright, Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus

WASHINGTON ROCK PARK

One Rock Road West
Green Brook, NJ 08812

The strategic location of Washington Rock on top of the first Watchung Mountain made this site a valuable lookout post during the Revolutionary War. In June of 1777, General George Washington used this natural outcropping with its thirty-mile panoramic view to direct his troops against the British forces under the command of General William Howe. The site, which became one of New Jersey's first State Parks, still offers visitors breathtaking views of New York City, and surrounding towns, cities and landmarks. The site is maintained by Somerset County.

CENTRAL COUNTY

ABRAHAM STAATS HOUSE

17 Von Steuben Lane
South Bound Brook, NJ
08880

The Abraham Staats House is one of the finest surviving buildings of the 18th century Dutch settlement of the Raritan Valley. The original core house was built around 1740 by the Staats, a Dutch family who inhabited the home for nearly two centuries. Expansions include a two-story, late-Federal/Greek Revival wing. Abraham Staats owned the home during the American Revolution, when in 1779, during the Middlebrook Cantonment, it served as military headquarters for Baron von Steuben, Inspector General for George Washington. The home was purchased in 1999 by the Borough of South Bound Brook, which now maintains the property with support from the Friends of Abraham Staats House.

Year Round Features and Activities:

- Living history events and programs; special topic lectures; exhibits; cooking demonstrations
- Historic house tours

ANDREW TEN EYCK HOUSE

671 Old York Road
Branchburg, NJ 08876

The Andrew Ten Eyck House, a brick English/Dutch Federal house, circa 1790-1810, is an important example of the township's early domestic architecture. The original brick portion of the house was constructed in the early 19th century, while the frame rear portion was added in the early 20th century. The early main block of the house exemplifies a side hall plan more common in the Delaware Valley than Somerset County. Early interior fabric still remaining includes door and window surrounds, door panels and fireplace mantels, as well as tongue-and-groove flooring and beaded baseboards. The second floor contains a local and regional history research library.

DANIEL ROBERT HOUSE

also known as

SOMERVILLE

BOROUGH HALL

25 West End Avenue

Somerville, NJ 08876

Built in 1888 for a wealthy New York businessman, the Daniel Robert Mansion was designed by architects Lambert and Bunnell of Bridgeport, Connecticut and is a faithful replica of an award-winning Alexander Jackson Davis design. It is listed on the National and State Registers of Historic Places. A quintessential Gothic Revival residence with picturesque asymmetrical massing, it has a steep and varied roof line, pointed arches, brownstone detailing, and gothic motifs. A ballroom addition was added by the Elks in 1939. Though damaged by fires in 1967 and 1980, it still retains the majority of its original detailing. Recent restorations include stained glass windows, the grand hallway, the main tower, and exterior windows. The mansion serves as Somerville Borough Hall and houses the Somerville branch of the Somerset County Library System. The James L. Sommerville New Jersey Room in the library includes a variety of resources including historic maps and photos of the Garden State.

FISHER FAMILY & ST. ANDREW CEMETERIES

280 Main Street
South Bound Brook, NJ 08880

Dedicated in 1954, St. Andrew Cemetery contains over 8,000 burials including many major figures from Ukrainian religious, military, political, and cultural life. Many of the ornate stone monuments have been featured in national publications. The grounds also include the burial plot of the Fisher, La Tourette, and Van Nortwick families. Hendrick Fisher was especially known for bringing the first copy of the newly-signed Declaration of Independence to Somerset County, which he publically read at the Frelinghuysen Tavern in Bound Brook on July 7, 1776. The cemeteries are owned and managed by the Ukrainian Orthodox Church of the USA. Journey through the Past programming is produced by the Ukrainian History and Education Center.

GENERAL JOHN
FRELINGHUYSEN HOUSE
also known as the
RARITAN PUBLIC LIBRARY
54 E. Somerset Street
Raritan, NJ 08869

The General John Frelinghuysen House is a fine example of Georgian residential architecture with extensive Federal and Greek Revival modifications. It was the home of the Frelinghuysen family from 1775 to 1922. Congressman Peter Frelinghuysen regained possession of the house in 1970 and donated it to the Borough of Raritan; it now serves as the Raritan Public Library. The house retains some original finishes, woodwork and door hardware, as well as an early brick smokehouse in the attic. The new Community Room and John Basilone Room house memorabilia honoring Purple Heart, Navy Cross and Medal of Honor recipient Marine Gunnery Sergeant John Basilone who served and died in WWII. The Library offers a computer kiosk showcasing numerous articles, profiles, old newspapers and historical photos on local history. The library has recently added searchable and browsable electronic editions of the historic Raritan Valley News to the Local History section of its website.

HISTORIC BROOK THEATER

also known as the

SOMERSET

CULTURAL ARTS CENTER

10 Hamilton Street

Bound Brook, NJ 08805

The Brook Theater is the only existing vaudeville theater remaining in Somerset County, and one of eight in New Jersey.

Built by developer Alexander Morecraft and designed by W.H. Lehman and Vincent Marillette, it was considered an architectural masterpiece. The theater opened in 1927 and presented a wide variety of live stage acts and talking picture shows. Two years later it was leased by the Metropolitan Fox Movie Corporation and became a first-run movie house. In 1999 and 2007 hurricanes caused extensive damage. In 2001 the Somerset County Cultural Arts Center Inc. purchased the theater as a cultural, educational, and entertainment venue and arts incubator. Through a generous Somerset County Historic Preservation Grant, a reproduction of the theater's marquee was installed in 2011, and in 2017, interior historic plasterwork was restored and repainted.

Year Round Features and Activities: Theater, Concerts, Orchestra, Comedians, Silent Films accompanied by a Wurlitzer organ, Movies, Dance and Summer Theater Camps, Rental venue for events, film and photography shoots.

THE PHILIP VAN HORNE HOUSE

941 East Main Street
Bridgewater, NJ 08807

Originally built in the mid-18th century, the Philip Van Horne House was extensively remodeled in the 19th and 20th centuries. During the American Revolution, the site was known as “Phil’s Hill” or “Convivial Hill” after Philip Van Horne, a Bridgewater merchant well known for his hospitality to both sides of the conflict. During the Battle of Bound Brook, British troops captured three American cannons on the front lawn. The house was used as a headquarters at various times by Generals Lincoln, Stirling, Lee, and Cornwallis.

SOMERVILLE EXEMPT FIRE MUSEUM
23 North Doughty Avenue
Somerville, NJ 08876

The Somerville Exempt Fire Museum is located in a restored firehouse built in 1888. Exhibits and artifacts include a pre-Civil War hand pumper and a horse pulled steam engine as well as equipment, hoses, ladders, helmets, uniforms, photos and other related fire service memorabilia. Visitors are guided through the museum by Somerville firefighters and have the chance to operate a restored fire alarm box system that once summoned volunteers to their stations. The original structure was built by West End Hose Company #3 in the late 19th Century. The building initially housed a hand pulled hose reel, a horse-drawn hose wagon, and in 1916, the first motorized fire pumper in town. The last alarm response from this building was made by a 1942 Mack pumper in July, 1969. In 1970, West End Hose Co. relocated to larger quarters on High Street. The Mack pumper, now designated as Engine 5, has been restored and is used for ceremonial purposes.

VAN VEGHTEN HOUSE

9 Van Veghten Drive
Bridgewater, NJ 08807

The Van Veghten House still stands on its original site on the north bank of the Raritan River. The present structure evolved from the first house built by Michael Van Veghten c. 1695. There are five centuries of stories associated with the land he owned and the nearby bridge he built over the Raritan River. During the Revolution the house served as headquarters for Quartermaster Nathanael Greene during the second Middlebrook Encampment in 1778-1779. Units of the Continental Army's Pennsylvania Bridge under "Mad" Anthony Wayne encamped on Van Veghten land. In March 1779, General Greene and his wife hosted a gathering at the Van Veghten House. In a letter to his friend, he noted that General Washington danced with Mrs. Greene "upwards of three hours without setting [sic]down. Later Rochambeau and his troops passed the house on the way to Yorktown.

WALLACE HOUSE and OLD DUTCH PARSONAGE
71 Somerset Street
Somerville, NJ 08876

George Washington made John Wallace's house his winter headquarters during the American Revolution's 1778-1779 Middlebrook Cantonment. Martha Washington and Alexander Hamilton stayed here. Three congregations of the Dutch Reformed Church in New Jersey's Raritan Valley built the Old Dutch Parsonage in 1751 to house their shared minister. The State Park Service preserves and interprets these houses with support from the nonprofit Wallace House and Old Dutch Parsonage Association.

SOUTH COUNTY

1860 SCHOOLHOUSE

also known as

MILLSTONE BOROUGH HALL

1353 Main Street
Millstone, NJ 08844

This one-room brick schoolhouse was built in 1860 on the west bank of the Millstone River and was used as a school until 1944. The masonry building, designed in the new “reformed” style current in mid-19th century America, is rectangular in shape with a large, light-filled meeting room, a simple gable roof, and a Gothic Revival style window above the entry. The original structure included a belfry with a bell to call the students to class. One teacher usually taught seven grades (occasionally eight.) The Board of Education transferred the building to the Borough in 1949, at which time it became Millstone’s Borough Hall.

Year Round Features and Activities:

- Borough meetings
- Holiday children’s programs
- Exhibition of historic photographs: early school and Borough streetscapes

BEDENSVILLE SCHOOLHOUSE
265 Burnt Hill Rd.
Skillman, NJ 08558

The Bedensville Schoolhouse, a 32' x 21' pinewood structure, was built in 1853 on half of an acre purchased from Joseph Voorhees. It ceased to operate as a public school in 1868. In 1975, the building was moved from its location across Route 206 near the intersection of Bridgepoint Road and River Road to its present location behind Orchard Hill Elementary School. Kim Galatro and Elaine Weidel of the Van Harlingen Historical Society served as “school marms” for several hundred elementary school students who visit the schoolhouse each year.

BLAWENBURG REFORMED CHURCH

424 County Road 518
Skillman, NJ 08558

Blawenburg Reformed Church has been in continuous operation since 1832. The classically designed building is a typical Federal/Georgian-style meeting house. Along with the Village of Blawenburg and an adjacent school building that is now used as a preschool, the church is on the State and National Registers of Historic Places. Among its interesting features are original pews with numbered doors, original organ pipes, and a cupola that houses a bell that has been rung since 1860. Over its long history, the church's mission of community service has remained constant. The exterior and interior of the church have recently been repaired and painted, and the organ has been totally rebuilt.

DIRCK GULICK HOUSE

506 County Road 601
Belle Mead, NJ 08502

The Dirck Gulick House, built in 1752, is nestled at the base of the Sourland Mountain in the Dutchtown section of Montgomery Township. The building conforms to the Dutch construction of the 18th century in its story-and-a-half height, double room depth, and use of heavy timber running from front to back wall. What is rare is its use of stone as a building material.

When Dirck died, his son Hendrick assumed ownership. The farm was divided into parcels in 1824 for Hendrick's 11 children. In addition to their shares of farmland, unmarried daughters Anne and Magdalena inherited the house. Upon their deaths, sister Jane's son Nathan Stout took possession. The house was sold out of the family in 1860. The house has been the headquarters of the Van Harlingen Historical Society since 1973 and is home to the Society's library, archives and collection of artifacts.

EAST MILLSTONE
BRIDGETENDER'S HOME AND STATION

2371 Amwell Road/Route 514 at the canal
East Millstone, NJ 08876

The Delaware and Raritan Canal operated from 1834 to 1932 and in one year carried more cargo than the more famous Erie Canal. The East Millstone Bridgetender's Home was built in the 1830s by the D&R Canal Company as a home for the bridgetender and his family. The job of the bridgetender was to swing open the bridge to allow the passage of canal-boats. The boat captain would signal the bridgetender by blowing on a tin horn or a conch shell. The house, the adjacent station, and outhouse were restored and are listed on the State and National Registers of Historic Places. The buildings are open on request by the D&R Canal Watch, a nonprofit that supports the D&R Canal State Park.

Year Round Features and Activities:

- Visitors may explore the exterior of both buildings and then walk the towpath of the canal

GRIGGSTOWN
BRIDGETENDER'S HOUSE
2 Griggstown Causeway
(Franklin Township)
Princeton, NJ 08540

The historic Griggstown Bridgetender's House dates to 1834 and was one of 67 such houses built by the Delaware and Raritan Canal Company. Today only 17 remain and a few are occasionally open to the public. The house was a residence for the bridgetender's family; it was the responsibility of the bridgetender to open the A-frame swing bridge to allow canal boats to pass when the Delaware & Raritan Canal was in operation. The boats carried coal, lumber, and many other products from Bordentown on the Delaware River to New Brunswick on the Raritan River. The house was restored in 2010 and functions as the Visitor Center for the Millstone Valley National Scenic Byway as well as the headquarters of the Millstone Valley Preservation Coalition. The family kitchen is now a museum while the other first floor room is used for distribution of literature about recreation, especially hiking, biking, fishing and kayaking, and the history of the Delaware and Raritan Canal and the Millstone Valley.

HAGEMAN HOUSE and FARM

209 South Middlebush Road
Somerset, NJ 08873

The house of the Hageman Farm was built in two phases. The smaller half of the house was built as the original farm house sometime in the early part of the 19th century. Benjamin Hageman moved there with his wife Jane (a Van Wickle) in 1861. He renovated and expanded the existing house into the classical Italianate/Victorian farmhouse we see today. Benjamin's son Garretson graduated from the Rutgers School of Engineering in 1868, and was responsible for the design and construction of the wagon, horse and dairy barns, built in 1876-7. Their design was influenced by a combination of Dutch, English and Victorian design styles. For nearly 40 years, the large room off the south porch served as the official office of Benjamin's son Peter, the Franklin Township Tax Collector. Peter's son, Garretson continued to live on the farm with his family until 1972. This historic farm has only been occupied by two families since 1756, the Garretsons and the Hagemans.

STOUTSBURG SOURLAND AFRICAN AMERICAN MUSEUM

also known as

MT. ZION AME CHURCH

189 Hollow Road
Skillman, NJ 08558

Built between 1899 and 1902, the Mount Zion African Methodist Episcopal (AME) Church is a one-room, rural black church that represents the evolution of African-American heritage in the Sourland region of central New Jersey. From the 1860s to the early 1900s, the Sourlands supported a thriving peach industry with African Americans becoming known for weaving peach baskets and providing farm labor. After a peach blight in 1900, the population moved away in search of work. A small number of African-American families persisted carrying on rural traditions, much of them centered about activities at Mount Zion AME. By the late 1950s, the church was recognized as one of the few places left in the Sourlands to offer a unique physical reflection of the African-American experience of this sub-region of New Jersey.
